

Why Christian Education?

1. The School Shares Your Values: Most Christian parents endeavor to teach their children about God at an early age. They take them to church, read Bible stories, and sing “Jesus Loves Me.” Christian schools are able to stress your family values five days a week. Three key institutions that shape a child’s mind are the home, the church and the school. Children are best served when all three institutions point them in the same direction.
2. God’s Word is Taught: Parents have a biblical mandate to saturate their children’s minds with the Word of God. It’s a difficult task under most circumstances, and especially so in a public school setting with a cross-section of religious views represented. Christian school teachers are blessed with the ability to weave God’s word into all subject areas. These teachers inherently love and fear the Lord and are able to freely express their views with the students. Daily prayer is also an integral part of the Christian school experience.
3. Safety: While Christian schools cannot proclaim that they are absolutely safe, in the public school setting there are more frequent occurrences of theft and physical violence, not to mention profanity and open rebellion in the classroom. If safety is a concern, choosing a Christian school may be the best fit for your family.
4. Academic Achievement: Christian schools offer a wide variety of academic choices from general to advanced placement courses. Most schools also offer academic assistance for students who need extra instructional help. Achievement testing statistics clearly show that Christian education is academically first-rate, and graduates are well prepared for college.
5. Individual Attention: Christian schools can almost always offer more individual attention than public schools due to small, more intimate class settings.
